Legislation requires the establishment of a Joint Health and Safety Committee in workplaces of 20 or more workers. Under provincial law, employers must provide eight hours of annual training to members of the committee from a BC WCB recognized provider. Federal and Mining legislation also has similar training provisions.

We can help.

The Centre is the largest training provider of JHSC training in BC. For the past 16 years the Centre has developed training by utilizing adult-oriented learning techniques aimed at preparing workplace committees to play a proactive role in the prevention of injuries and diseases.
